Theobalds Road, Holborn, WC1X

 2 Bedroom (s)  2 Bathroom (s)  Leasehold

This tastefully presented property, situated within a period building, enjoys a luxury finish featuring timber floors and a stylish interior design.

The spacious reception room faces into the development, avoiding overlooking Theobalds Road, and features floor-to-ceiling windows which open fully to access the Juliet balcony. To the back of the reception room, the designer kitchen is open-plan and includes fully integrated appliances within sleek black kitchen units with stone worktops. The double bedrooms are both extremely generous, with the main bedroom including a walk-in wardrobe. Both the main bathroom and en-suite boast a bespoke finish with a walk-in shower cubicle, a mirrored vanity cabinet and marble-effect design tiling. The property comes complete with storage/utility space and a daytime porter.

Located on Theobalds Road, to the north lies King's Cross St Pancras and to the south, the professional hub and legal lairs of Fleet Street, Chancery Lane, and Holborn. The location is surrounded by the City's most renowned educational institutions, museums, and professional associations. Located between Bloomsbury and Clerkenwell, the area is adorned with an impressive array of Georgian garden squares, popular independent and high street eateries, museums, and cultural edifices.

Theobalds Road is in the Holborn district of London. It is named after Theobalds Palace because King James I used this route when going between there and London, travelling with his court and baggage of some 200 carts. For this reason, it was also known as the King's Way, which is now the name of the nearby road, Kingsway.
